

Please, please don't allow cell phone use on airplanes. I ride public transportation to and from work. If riders who use cell phones on the bus would talk quietly, things wouldn't be so bad, but the majority of phone users think they have to talk loudly to make themselves heard, infringing their private conversations on others. If forced to sit next to someone on an airplane who was using a cell phone, I might have to retaliate by singing out loud, and that is something you really wouldn't want to hear! :-)
